FREE MONEY FOR EVERYONE?
WHAT'S THE CATCH?

Universal basic income (UBI) is a regular, unconditional sum of money given to everyone without means testing or a requirement to work.

We're not saying UBI is the answer – but it could be an answer: to precarious work, rising inequality, increasing social care needs, the democratic deficit, or the automation of our workforce.

Most of all, we believe that in Sheffield we should be testing the effects of UBI on paid and unpaid work, leisure, wellbeing, relationships and community – and talking about the idea with everyone, from individuals to institutions.
